Accounting software for those who've outgrown entry-level solutions

An award-winning solution for those seeking to 'step up' to next-generation finance software

As an organisation grows in size and complexity, you may find the entry-level accounting software which once served you well is now holding you back.

There used to be a gulf between entry-level products and the expensive systems designed for large enterprises. But iplicit was created to fill that mid-market gap.

iplicit brings powerful cloud accounting features to organisations which typically have 30-500 staff. But it does that without the high costs and complexity of big ERP systems.

It's fantastic, the speed at which you can do things on iplicit. Products like Xero and Sage, and QuickBooks online, pale in comparison to iplicit. They don't have the diversity and depth of functionality that we need – the stock control, the sales orders, purchase orders and all that information.
